

Trans Fucking Manifesto

By Kai Niezgodá (they/them) and Jasper Denton (they/them and he/him)

- You are your gender/sex. Whether you've transitioned socially, medically, whether you ever want to. Your body is your gender/sex too, because it's a part of you.
- You don't have to hate your body to be a True Trans. You can love it (or try to) and let other people love it, too. Dysphoria and self love are not mutually exclusive.
- You're not an oddity or a collector's item. Your body may be the first of its kind someone has seen, but it deserves reverence. Conversely, they're not a hero for getting into bed with you.
- The words you use for yourself are the words your partner(s) should use. Chest, boobs, pecs, dick, clit, junk, front hole, back hole, whatever. You have the right to communicate which words fit best and to have those words used about you.
- Same goes for naming sex acts. Do you want them to give you head, suck you off, go down on you? It's important your partner(s) feel(s) comfortable with the words you use too, but don't call it something that makes you feel misgendered, dysphoric or otherwise shitty for their sake.
- Throw your clothes on the floor, you have the right to be here. You have the right to own your body, take up the space you're in, get off when you want.
- Keep your clothes on, you have the right to feel secure. Maybe you need time to build trust, to learn more love for your own skin. Take your time.
- Avoid anyone who makes you feel like you have something to prove. You are already trans/non-binary/woman/man/you enough. You don't need to fuck anyone, any way, for this to be true.
- This, like anything else, can reaffirm/subvert/build your gender. It's okay for sex acts to exist in your nebula of gender performances.
- Say yes. Say no. Say let's try it and find out. Say touch me here, don't touch me that way, more of this, less of that. Say this body is mine, and it is with yours on my terms.
